 Dean Gerald T. McLaughlin.*

A LETTER FROM THE DEAN, FALL 1991

To all our graduates and friends:

Someone once quipped that "immigration is the sincerest form of flattery." Well, much as my father immigrated from Ireland to New York earlier this century, so my family and I immigrated from New York to California earlier this year. What I found here in this new world has been wonderful. Loyola Law School is a confident and vibrant place, a law school with an almost limitless future. I am honored at having been chosen your Dean.

If I had to create a list of the most pleasant tasks done by a law school Dean, today's report to you would be at the top of the list. There are few more pleasurable jobs for a Dean than recognizing the generosity of a School's alumni/ae and benefactors. On behalf of the entire Loyola Law School community—faculty, administration and students—let me thank all of those mentioned in this Honor Roll for the financial assistance given to the Law School. I believe firmly that no good deed should go unrecognized, and no generous act should go unheralded.

As Dean, it is also my job to report to you on how your contributions are being utilized.

1) Scholarships

Perhaps the most critical need of Loyola Law School is student scholarships and loan funds. Law School tuition is now over $14,000. To pay this tuition, students must borrow dearly, in many cases adding to already heavy debt burdens from college. Recently I had lunch with a student who was graduating with over $60,000 in debt with a monthly payment of $1,100 — and no job. Loyola Law School must try to assist these students with adequate financial help. During the 1991-92 academic year, the Law School dedicated $1.3 million to scholarships.

We awarded $275,000 to 25 students in the 1991 entering class. But our total entering class consisted of 420 students—that means that 94% of the first year class did not receive any scholarship help. If we are going to continue to attract the best and brightest students to Loyola, adequate scholarship and loan funds are critical.

2) Programs

Loyola Law School is bursting with energy. Its faculty contains many nationally and even internationally known scholars. So far this year four faculty members have published books, and another 11 faculty members have either published law review articles/monographs or are about to do so.

Amidst this hurly-burly of faculty publications, several new academic initiatives are either underway or under consideration. Let me cite one such initiative. This year the Loyola Law School Institute for Latin American Legal Studies was established by the faculty to foster mutual understanding between the U.S. and Latin America. Professor Edith Friedler, who is both a Chilean and an American lawyer, is the Institute's first director. The Institute is sponsoring a program on Free Trade in February 1992 and has undertaken efforts to assist in harmonizing U.S. - Latin American legal principles. The Institute has also established a summer law school program in Costa Rica under the co-directorship of Professors Robert Benson and Jennifer Friesen. Finally, under the auspices of the Institute, Professor Jacob Dollinger from Rio de Janeiro in Brazil will visit our Law School in the spring semester.

Loyola Law School has a commitment to excellence—excellence in scholarship, excellence in teaching, and excellence in community service. But this commitment is not without cost. To be the best law school that we can requires alumni/ae support. You are a part of this excellence and you have given us that support.

Thank you for helping us help our students with scholarship and loan fund awards. Thank you for helping us initiate new and innovative academic programs. By appearing on this Honor Roll, you have become partners in Loyola's progress. I ask you to continue your generous support in the coming year.

Sincerely,

Gerald T. McLaughlin

Dean

THE ADVOCATES CAMPAIGN

Gifts from alumni/ae through the Advocates Campaign are important to Loyola Law School as they illustrate support for the school from our graduates. This support, no matter what the size of the gift, is vital to our ABA accreditation and to recruiting support from foundations who make gifts and grants to Loyola Law School based on the number of alumni/ae contributing. Your gift this year is crucial to meeting the 1991-92 goals.

Goals for the 1991-92 Advocates Campaign

Number of Alumni Donors	1,000
Annual Fund Gifts	$125,000
Total Alumni Giving	$250,000

Your gift carries with it membership in a donor support group.

Donor Levels for the Advocates Campaign

Joseph J. Donovan Fellows:	$1,000 and above
J. Rex Dibble Fellows:	$500 and above
Walter Henry Cook Fellows:	$250 and above
Advocate Fellows:	$100 and above
Associate Advocates:	$25 and above
